

Luís de Sousa

got his Ph.D. in Political and Social Sciences at the European University Institute, Italy in 2002 following public defence of a thesis entitled Corruption: Assessing Ethical Standards in Political Life through Control Policies. He is currently Professor at Aveiro University, Portugal and Edmond J. Safra Network Fellow at Harvard University. He is coordinator of ANCORAGE-NET, a research network on anticorruption agencies, Chairman of Transparency International-Portugal and Local Research Correspondent on Corruption for the European Commission. He also acts as an international consultant on corruption risk assessments and control policies for OECD/SIGMA, European Commission, Council of Europe, and the UNDP. His current research interests focus on corruption studies, ethics regulation, regional integration, cross-border cooperation and comparative politics in general.

